

The first teacher's daybook in history: On the life of Sumerian Ludingirra and the mean of the oldest educational system

Akbar Najaf

---

Author:

Akbar N. Najaf,
A researcher of general
Turkish history of the Middle Ages.
Azerbaijan, Baku. E-mail:
ekbernecef@gmail.com

---

Keywords:

Sumerian, Ludingirra,
cuneiform, tablet, pupil,
teacher, lesson, ummiai,
edubba.

---

Abstract. We read from the daybook: «I am a Sumerian teacher, poet and writer. My age is 75. I have long left the teacher profession. But, I think, my poetry and writer profession will continue until I die ...» The «Memorial Daybook» of a Sumerian teacher begins with these words, which is about 4,000 years ago. This book is one of the first known teacher memories of human history. It has been 60 years to combine these clay cuneiform inscriptions have found as wedge writings. The Nippur resident, Ludingirra, who was the author of this «Memorial Daybook» of 1000 tablets with a total of 23 tablets, was a Sumerian teacher. In his memoirs he gave his studentship and teaching experience more value. Thus, thanks to this work, the world's pedagogical science has acquired detailed knowledge of the first human-education and education of humanity. As it is known, the Sumerians were the people who created the first social-political organizations, culture and states of history. The history of this people, claiming that they came from the Aratta region, which is located between the Lake Urmia and the Caspian Sea, which originated in southern Azerbaijan, is directly related to the ancient history of our country. If this claim is true, Sumerian Ludingirra should be regarded as «our first teacher» from the moral point of view.

---

<https://orcid.org/0000-0003-4075-0300>

DOI: 10.32906/AJES/683.2018.04.33

To cite this article:

Najaf A. (2018) The first teacher's daybook in history: On the life of Sumerian Ludingirra and the mean of the oldest educational system. Azerbaijan Journal of Educational Studies. Vol. 685, Issue IV, pp. 123–132.

Article history

Received: 04.09.2018; Accepted: 21.11.2018